- 216 respondents; all parents of 6-12 graders

Is youth substance use a problem in your community?

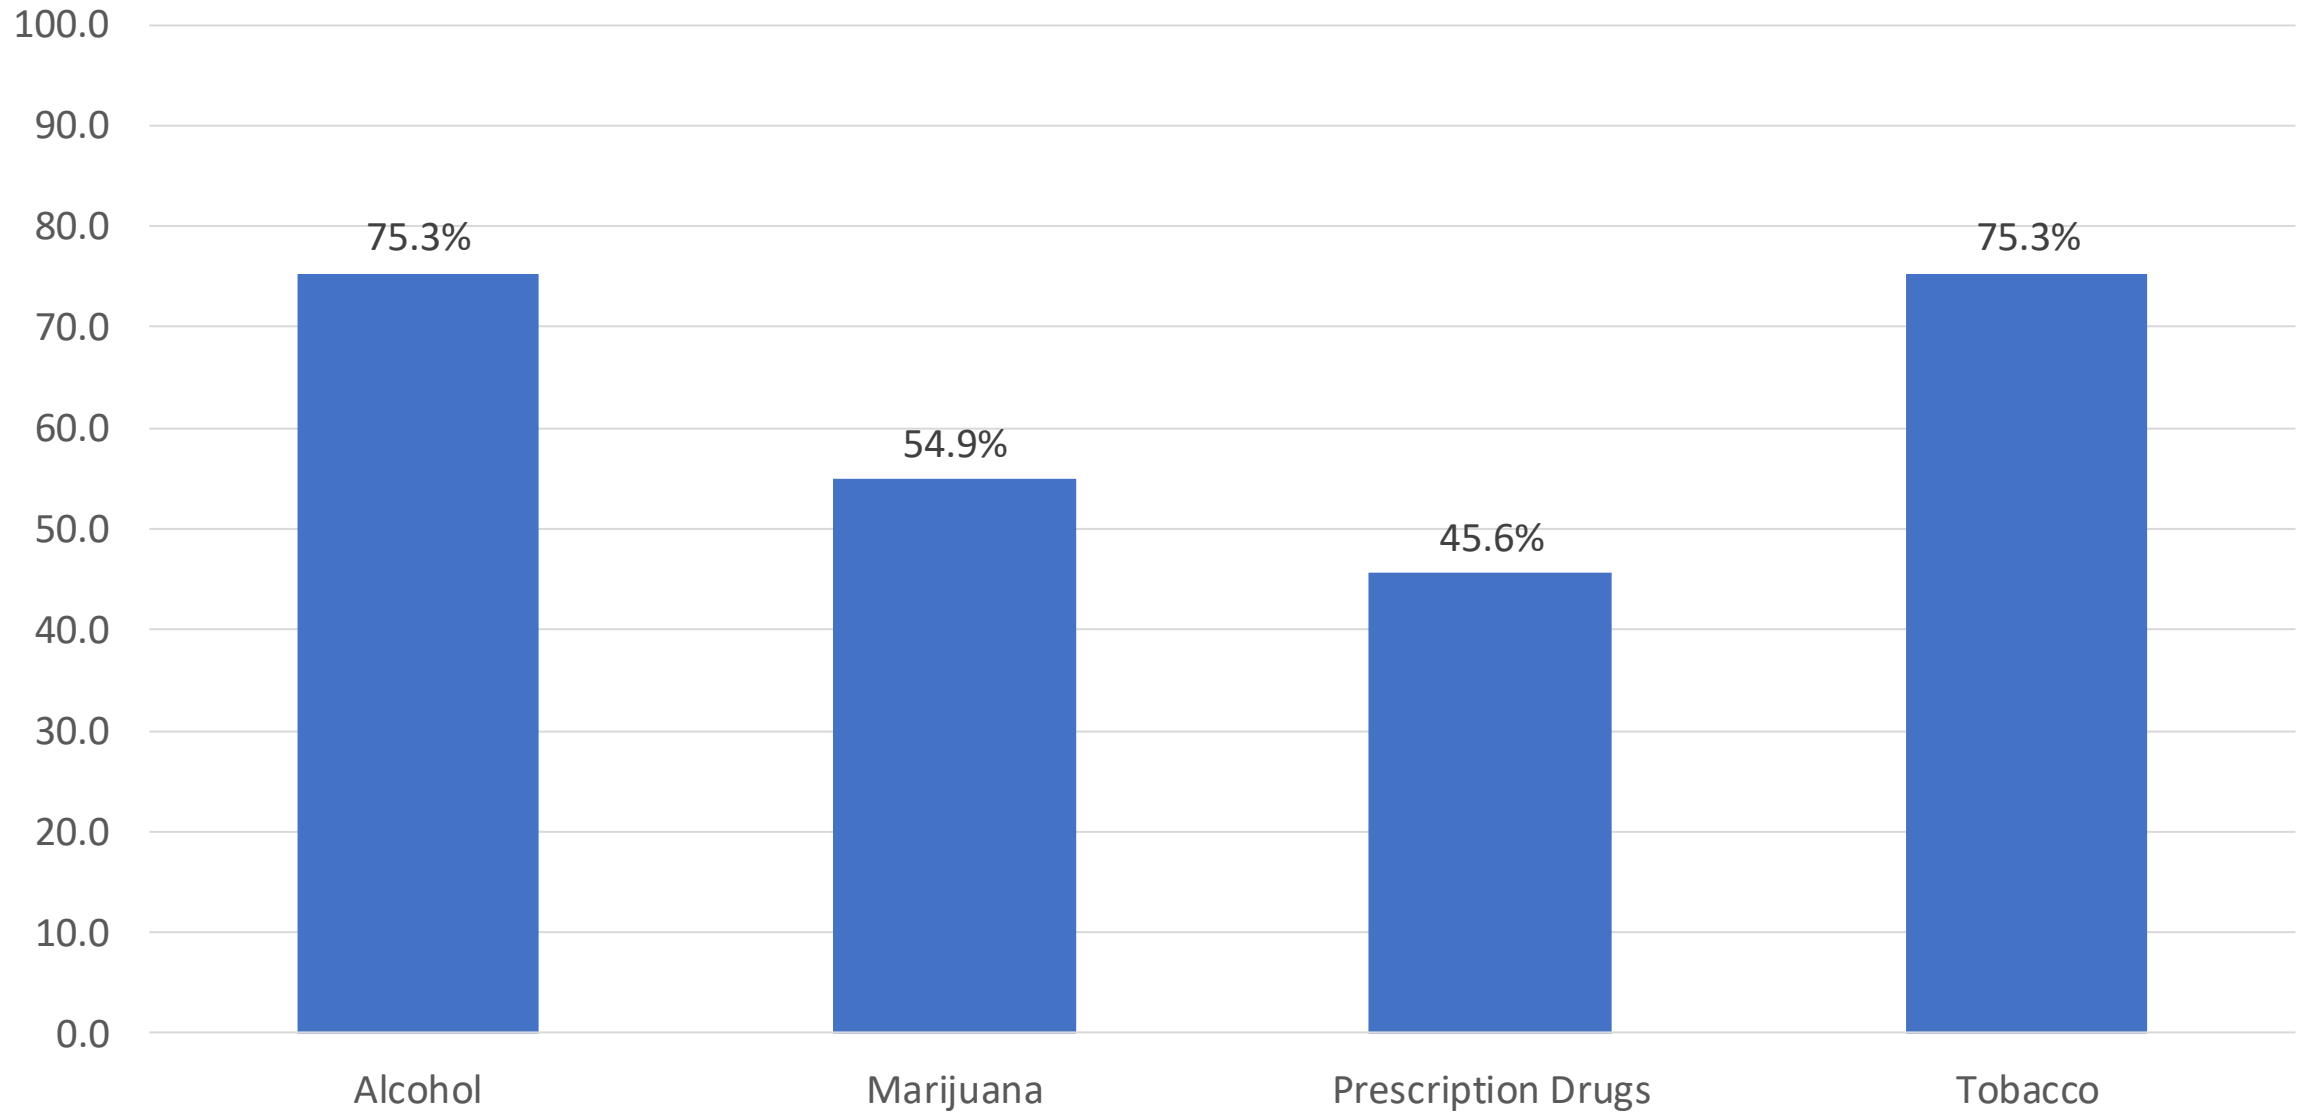

It is easy for youth to get substances in my community.

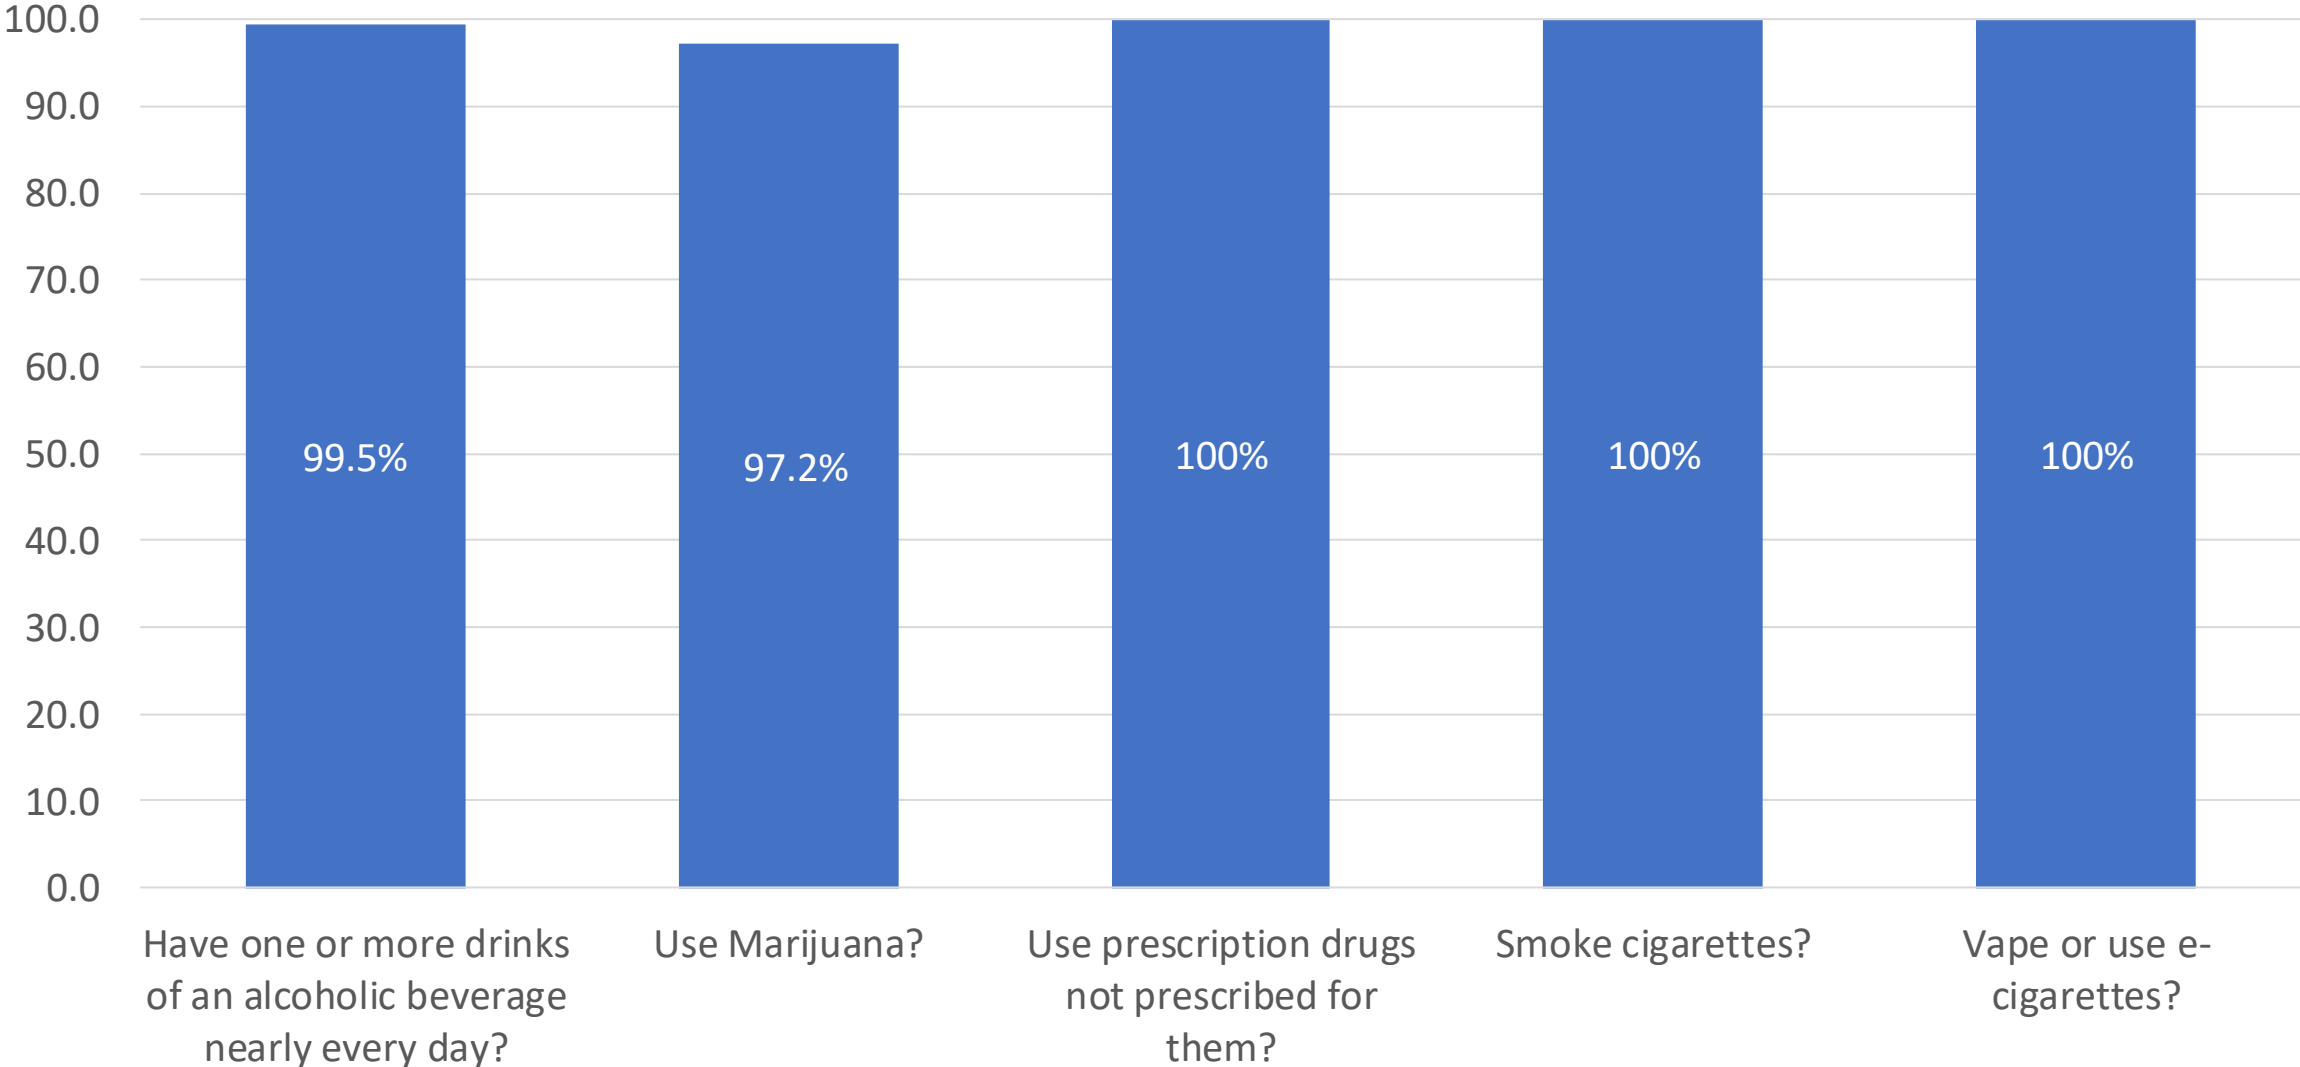

Too many parents turn a blind eye to substance use in my community.

Parents set a bad example for their children by their own substance use.

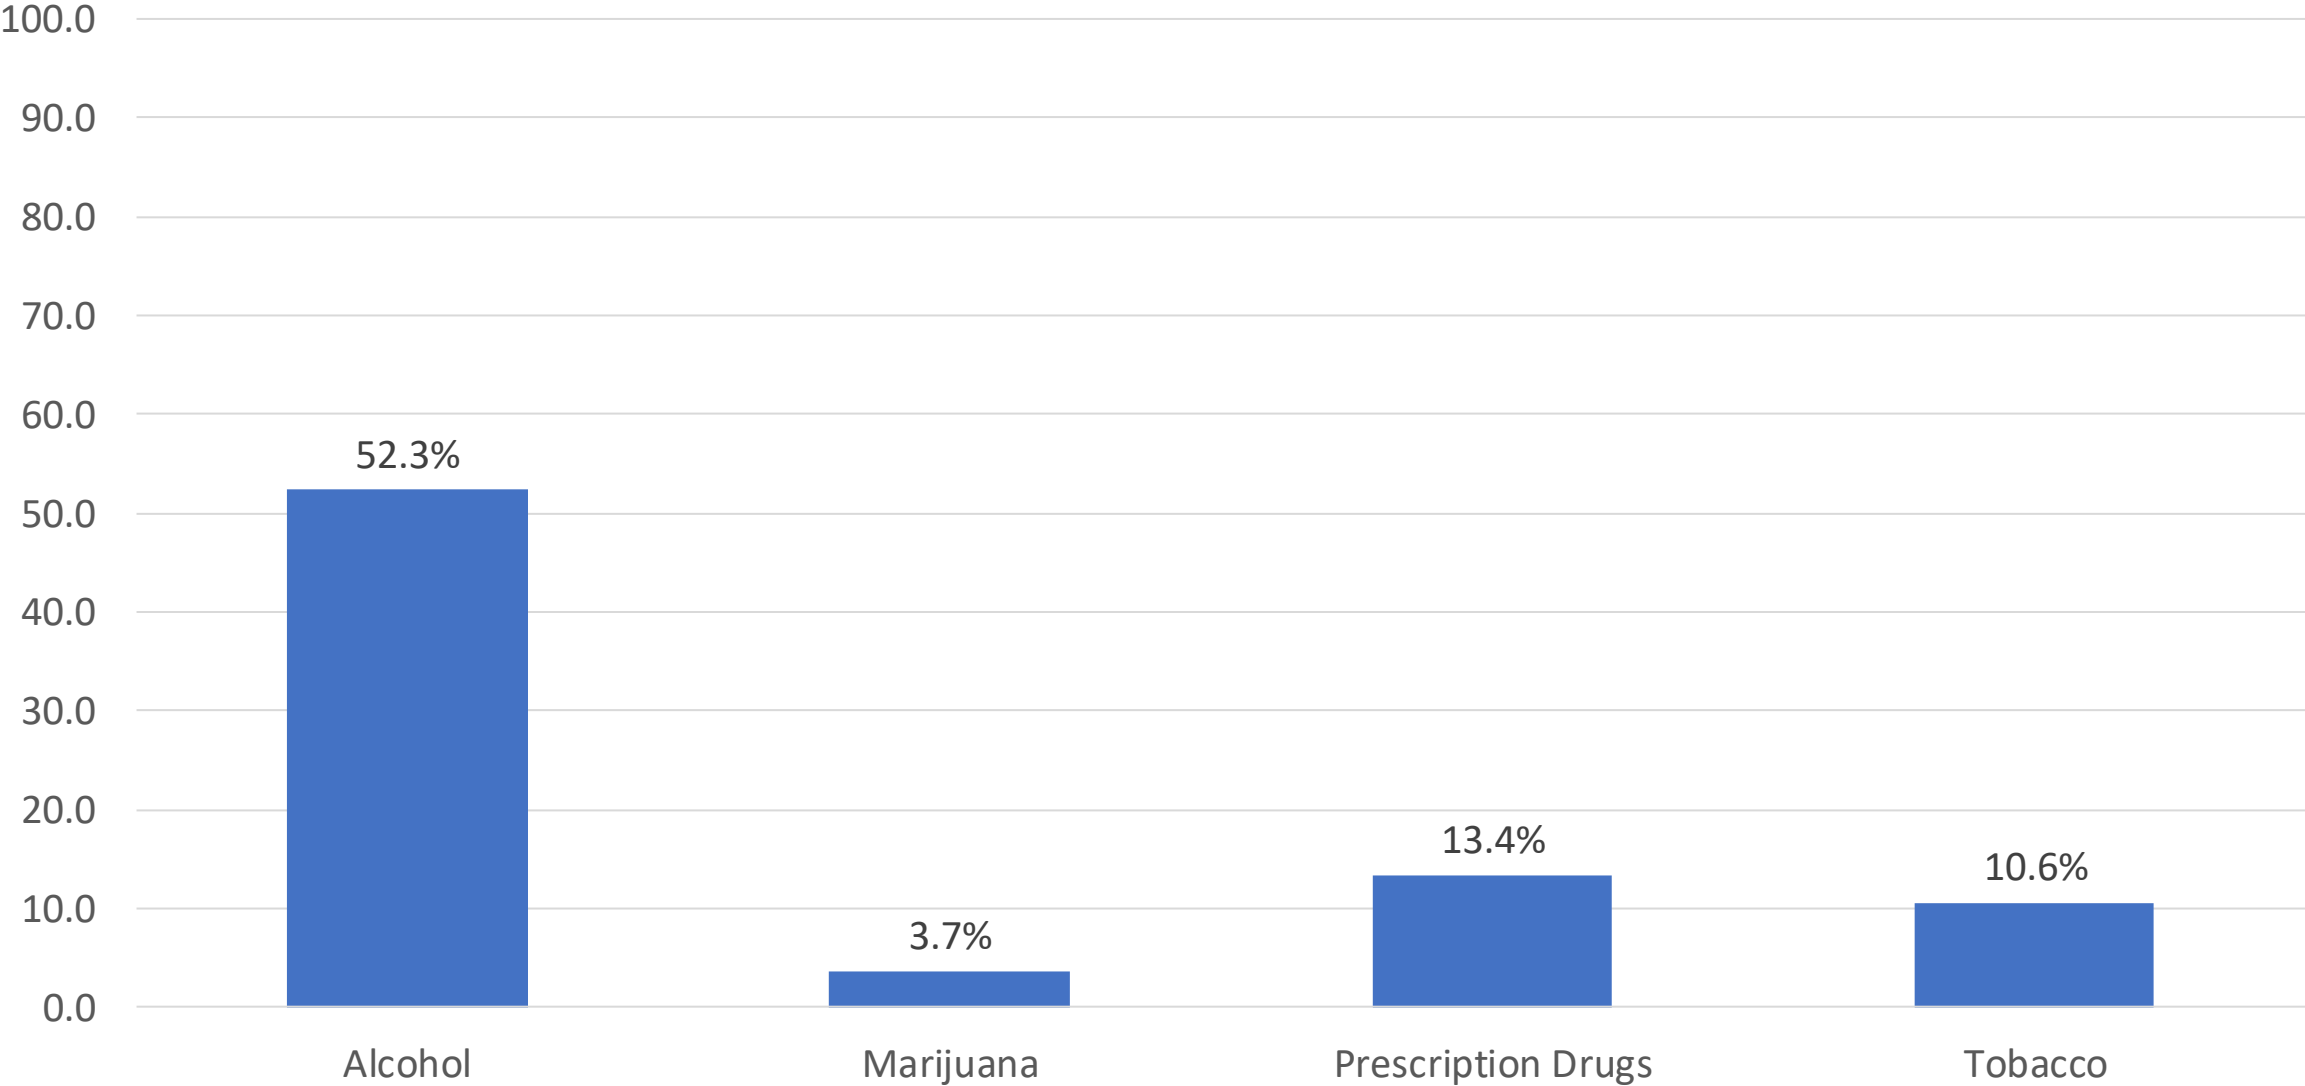

It would be wrong for my child to use substances.

Have talked with child in the past 12 months about the potential negative consequences of substances.

It is likely that my child could access substances in my home without my knowledge.

Occasional substance use with parent supervision is okay
